MR. JAMES B. M'NEIL.

IT is with great pleasure we place before our readers a portrait of this much-esteemed rowing celebrity—the hero of many successful contests in America, Tyne, and Scotland. Mr. James McNeil, one of the famous boat-builders of Great Britain—undoubtedly the most famous of Scotland. His boat, "The Clutha," was a great success in the Glasgow Regatta with considerable in connection with the exciting aqua contests of the North, and the boats he has designed there, and to entitle the portrait of this builder, we have obtained for him the honour of being appointed boat-builder to His Grace the Duke of Hamilton. This portrait will be a great interest to those interested in aquatic sports, that McNeil's crew won the great eight-race on the Thames in 1854—a victory of no inconsiderable magnitude. The portrait is from the Egerton Cup, Ladies' Cup, and the Miss-Soncup at regattas nearer home, and has contested successfully in a number of matches of which we have not space to detail. The portrait of Mr. McNeil, Mr. McNeil has also held for years the portmanteau post of manager of the City of Glasgow Regatta Club. Here, then, are sufficient reasons why his portrait should be of interest to our readers. We trust our readers will be as interested in Mr. McNeil as we are in his portrait. It is a portrait of a robust and expert swimmer in the United Kingdom, and has, during his career, risked his life no less than fifty times in saving drowning creatures from drowning. On some of these occasions the risk he ran was something fearful to reflect upon, and went it well as the printed record of the event, we have our doubts as to the moment of writing, we could not be half inclined to believe that the achievements of McNeil were the creation of a romance's imagination rather than hard, honest, and courageous work for the benefit of the majority of them. Such bravures as Mr. McNeil has displayed could not pass long unrewarded, and on the 15th day of November, 1854, the citizens of Glasgow presented him with a gold medal and a silver medal, attached to a chain, and a purse containing fifty sovereigns. Up to that time he had saved no less than thirty-nine lives. On the evening of the date above alluded to, however, they were forty gentlemen assembled together at the residence of Mr. Molr, Mr. Andrew R. Wilson officiating as committee. Mr. James McNeil, for his great and heroic exertions. After an excellent supper, and the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, the chairman gave the word of the evening—“Long live the Queen, and long live to Mr. James McNeil.” In proportion to the number of persons present, Mr. McNeil on the spool display before him of so few, he received a special purse of honours. He is entitled to his interplay and courage. He is entitled to his interplay and courage.

in saving or losing; and he treated her as though she would be spared to see no more. The presentation was, as a recognition of her unusual services, with a splendid silver medall, a purse containing upwards of £100, a book of silver sovereigns, and a book, in which was inscribed, "To the only and most courageous and heroic person in the world, Mrs. J. M. Jackson, with a purse of sovereigns, by a number of the citizens of Glasgow, for his daring acts of bravery in rescuing many persons from

TWO SINGULAR FIGHTS.

Mr. WINTER, of Great Yarmouth, this week furnishes us with drawings of three great fights, the first between a bull and a rat, and the second between a bull and a stallion. These fierce episodes will still be fresh in the memory of the majority of our readers, having occurred at a comparatively recent date, and having been chronicled in these columns. At the present date, it will be remembered, it was decided, and that the battle was to be carried out on equal terms, only one rat even engaging the formidable animal; but towards the end the second bird's equanimity deserted him, and dismounting from a perch, from which he had been observing the battle, he like Blucher at Waterloo, came in at a time when victory might have been to either side, and by a few vigorous efforts disposed of the combatants.

The bull and stallion fight was a terrible affair, and created no little interest when it was made public. It will be remembered that the contest occupied a great length of time, and was characterized by a ferocity seldom displayed by animals of a comparative degree of tameness. The efforts to separate the combatants were, of course, vain; and the fight only terminated with the death of the horse, a most valuable and very beautiful animal.

WASP, CHILD, AND BILLY.

The engraving from which our artist has furnished us with the drawing, which was given to us by the artist, was published on the 15th day of May, in the year 1809, by J. & C. RICHARDSON & SONS, at their sporting gallery, 5, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square, London. It was dedicated to Henry Boynton, Esq., the owner of the three animals portrayed. They were the last of the Duke of Hamilton's hounds, and being the only ones left of that famous pack, were highly esteemed of, and were the highest value, and their owner paid 120 guineas for them, and 20 guineas for a whelp before them, and the same sum came to be offered, when we inform them that the group of sports, of whose likenesses we perpetuate in the pages of these LIVELY AND FAIR PICTURES, were the last of the race of real bulldogs, and that in their decease the breed became extinct. This will seem to be a rather startling assertion to those who believe that the genuine bulldog still exists and snarls among us, but the authority we quote is unfortunately beyond dispute. The shadow cast on the canvass by the skilful hand of the painter is all that remains of a bulldog which, when we may well feel the power of having once possessed. The original painting from which Mr. Ward's engraving is taken, was by the late I. B. Chalon, animal painter to Her Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York.

THE MOORS AND FORESTS.

SPONSERS are now beginning to arrive daily at their Highland quarters or the season. Having traversed some of the most noted extensive moors in the country, we were glad to find that such favourable hopes were entertained of the prospects for the 12th. The broods are not numerous, but the chance of finding them strong on the wing, on the Atholl and Breadalbane moors, where some of the finest sport in Scotland is annually produced, the hills are covered with them, and the coveys will be pretty numerous. The feeblest broods are invigorated by the warmth which has lately prevailed. Few harron birds are to be seen, but the coveys are now in an average size, or in the number of birds in each covey. The broods are not numerous, but the chance of finding them strong on the wing, on the average of former years. The young birds on many exposed grounds have been destroyed since the hatching of the eggs, but those which have hatched are now, however, beyond danger, and nothing is required but a course of severe weather to make them well grown, and fit for the market. Foulhill moors, extending to many thousands of acres, we understand the coveys are not approachable, so small and scattered are they; but the moors and blackcrows are very plentiful here, but they are very scarce this season. On the Killin and Callender moors the prospects are good, much better than in 1821, and the participants in the sport Northwards, on the confines of Inverness-shire, the moors are not so well stocked, and sport is not so good. We understand that there is not at one time anticipated. On Lochearn and Loch Tayside the moors are beautiful at present, and the birds are well hatched. The deer are in splendid condition, as the season's pasture has been a very luxuriant one. The fawns are bright and the horns are very numerous. A very superior stalking season is expected.—Edinburgh Courant.

A STRANGE BET ORR.—In a certain notorious northern town, in the heart of the Scottish Highlands, the game of whose Town Council extends to my knowledge, imagination itself even planted in College-green, there lives a lawyer, celebrated for the length of his tongue, and the measure of his wit, and his wit. Some weeks ago he happened to meet, at dinner, a lady equally famed in the district for her talking propensities. Some smart young gentlemen had been placed between them, which was foreseen by the company, for their own amusement. The result was a bet as to who would talk longest. Any given subject was to be excused, and the speaker spending for half an hour at a time; the subject to be named by the host, and the hour, place, and judges to be fixed by the hostess, and the bet to be paid by the winner. The stake to be paid a side, the winner to hand it over to the charitable institutions of the town. Both parties had their wits about them, and mainly conversed with the lady. The bet soon got wind, and, of course, created an immense amount of merriment. But were fresh bets at odds to the favor of the party who had been christened "perpetual motion," and become a local celebrity. The day passed was anxious, however, to all, and the audience in the town would have held the audience, but the rear of ride with which it was supplied on every hand, and which was composed of many and many words, and he, perhaps prudently, succumbed, leaving the redoubtable Amazon in undisputed possession of the chair, and full of ribald names. Of course, she still had the butt of ridicule, and the lady is received with cheer by the mob whenever she appears in the streets.

SHEFFIELD POULTRY, DOG, AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

During the past week Sheffield has been the scene of one of the most successful exhibitions of dogs and poultry that ever took place in the country. The place of exhibition has been thronged with visitors of the highest respectability and local standing. The show of dogs was the most popular feature of the exhibition, and included in it were nearly all the breeds of dogs. There were about twenty-seven classes of dogs, ranging in size from the Newfoundland to the toy terrier. There were two exhibitors of foxhounds, Earl Fitzwilliam and Mr. D. Sellers. Wilson Overend, Esq., contributed a splendid couple of harriers, named Chancet and Justice, and a large greyhound. The competitors here are the well-known names of Mr. M. J. Stanley, Mr. Beau Wragg, Mr. James Miller, and others. The show of harriers was decidedly attractive. Four classes of birds were entered for competition by Lord Wharncliffe and A. D. Currie, Esq., of the 4th Regiment. There were greyhounds, 11 lbs. and 12 lbs. Mr. Thomas S. Morris (Black Swan) exhibited his dog Rap, and the judges had considerable difficulty in determining whether it ought not to take a prize. After a long examination, in which great care was manifested, they decided that Rap was a greyhound, and not a spaniel, and conferred that distinction on him accordingly. Amongst the greyhound bitchies there were some very fine specimens, shown by Mr. William Hall, of Preston; Mr. Thorpe, Fargate; Mrs. Hutchinson, Victoria Hotel, Sheffield; and Mr. J. C. Taylor, of Halifax. The display of pointers was remarkably fine. Amongst the exhibitors were Mr. M. J. Ellison, Mr. John Cryer, of Ashton-under-Lyne; Mr. George Miller, of the House of Mr. W. Harbottle Pattison, Rotherham; Mr. J. Turner, of Armathope, Doncaster; Mr. J. G. Fargate, of East Parade; Mr. W. H. Aldom, Matlock Dale; and Captain Osborne, 1st Royal Dragoons. There were twenty retrievers, amongst them being the spiky bitchie, belonging to Mr. J. T. Riley, of Halifax, which won the first prize at the North of England Show in June last, and the much admired royal winner, belonging to the same gentleman, which won the first prize at the Holme Show in May last, and the prize at the North of England show in June. Mr. J. C. Taylor, of Leeds, took the first and second prizes with a couple of very neat beagles. Mr. J. G. Fargate, and Rose, which were very generally admired. Mr. Joseph Hutchinson, of High-street, exhibited a set, well matched, gull and terrier dog, called Wasp; and Mr. Henry Wilson also exhibited a fine powerful dog of the same breed. The following is a complete list of the prizes awarded:—Couple of foxhounds, 1st, the Right Hon. the Earl Fitzwilliam.—Couple of harriers, 1st, Mr. J. G. Fargate; Mr. Benjamin Smith. Highly commended, Mr. James Cheek.—Couple of beagles, 1st, the Right Hon. the Earl Fitzwilliam.—Mr. Currie, Esq.—Greyhound dog, 1st, Mr. G. S. Greening; 2nd, Mr. Wm. Robinson.
